The debut of the Android version of the “Teleco!” application for providing TV program information
Let’s share the watching programs with the application “Teleco!”

SKY Perfect JSAT Corporation (Head office: Minato-ku, Tokyo; President & Chief Executive Officer: Shinji Takada) will start offering the Android version on March 29, following the iPhone version started on February 29, regarding the charge-free smartphone application of the TV program information service “Teleco!” (<http://teleco.tv>), which enables users to retrieve and receive the information on the programs across media including terrestrial broadcasting, BS, and CS.

The application “Teleco!” has the social “Watch-In” function linked to Facebook and Twitter. By watching in to the currently watching program from the broadcasting list of terrestrial digital broadcasting, BS, or CS, customers can post their messages in social media and share program information and comments with their friends through Facebook and Twitter while watching a program. Customers can share constantly-updated information on a real-time basis with not only the friends in social networks but also the users of the application, and so they can discover new programs they have never watched. With the launch of Android version, Android users also become able to use the “Teleco!” application, and this increases the opportunities to share TV program information via smartphones, for example, to share comments through social networks among iPhone and Android users.

Since “Teleco!” has an enormous amount of information across various media, the application enables customers to enjoy TV more. With the launch of Android version, we will improve the convenience of “Teleco!” so that many users share the programs with the application “Teleco!” and enjoy TV together.

We hope you will download and enjoy the application “Teleco!” that can broaden your TV life in a social manner.
